

SOCIAL TIMES Fashion luminaries revealed their true colours at the International School of Colour and Design.

Minds with designs on the future

THE International School of Colour and Design presented Behind Design at the North Sydney campus on March 25 and 28.

It was a rare opportunity for the luminaries of the design world to share their stories with aspiring designers and lovers of great design.

Guest speakers on the night included Edwina Hirst, from Colour Matters, Vanessa Colyer Tay, from Inside Out magazine, Babette Hayes, from Babette Hayes Design, Tamara Maynes, from Bespoke Workshop, and Margot Warre, from Margot Warre Textile Design.

International School of Colour and Design general manager Luke Harrison said both nights "were an absolute sellout and very enlightening for those considering a future in design or who simply appreciate great design".

Pictures:

1. School founding director Prue Royle And TV personality Tara Dennis. 2. Katie French and Sue Porter. 3. Jeanette Maxwell and Alison Nicol. 4. Silvia Hampshire, Nancy Constandelia and guest, and Pascale Rajek.

Were you snapped?

See more photos at mosmandaily.com.au

